PREFATORY NOTE

This index undertakes to deal only with the printed reports of administrative officers, legislative committees, and special commissions of the states and with governors' messages for the period since 1789. It does not refer to constitutions, laws, legislative proceedings or court decisions, except in so far as they happen to be found in the class of documents above mentioned. It attempts, on the other hand, to furnish a list, as complete as possible, of all the documents and messages which fall within its scope, in whatever form they have been published, whether separately, in collected documents, legislative journals or volumes of laws, and to indicate the volume in which they may be found. In addition to furnishing a list of reports and messages, the index undertakes to supply a reference by volume and page to all material of economic importance which they contain.

Although the index is confined to matter of economic bearing, the term "economic" has been given a broad interpretation. In view of this liberal interpretation it is believed that the index will constitute a useful addition to the resources of students of almost any aspect of American history.

It will be seen that the present index differs both in scope and character from R. R. Bowker's "State Publications," the valuable pioneer work in this field. It is narrower in scope than "State Publications," which aims to present a list not only of reports and governors' messages but of all state documents; but in the field which the present work covers it contains not only a more complete list of documents than has hitherto been published but also an index of their contents in so far as these have an economic bearing.

The arrangement is alphabetical by topics. The references under each topic are divided into two groups, viz., "serial" and "non-serial." Within each of these divisions the arrangement is chronological. Numerous cross-references will, it is hoped, make it possible to discover with little difficulty all the material bearing on a topic. A division of serial reports into more than one series occurs whenever there is a change in title, in the authority making the report or in frequency of issue. It will be seen that this division is not an arbitrary one. It is made in the belief that it will contribute to a clearer understanding of the facts than would a narrative explanation.

Uniform entry words for subjects recurring in different states will be retained throughout the series. It will thus be possible to make a study not only of the historical development of an economic subject as reflected in the documents of an individual state but also to make a comparative study of that development as it has taken place in the country at large. To accomplish this purpose it has been necessary to make the selection of entry words without reference to the peculiarities of local usage, such peculiarities being recognized in the case of each state by cross-references. The abbreviations employed are believed to be sufficiently obvious to make a table of them unnecessary. Unless otherwise stated the size of the books is octavo.

A feature introduced in the New York part of this index, and not employed in the preceding parts (i. e., Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont), is the system of references from locality. This feature has been made a part of the succeeding issues.

Another change of importance, namely, the addition to the list of topics of the names of those persons who have exercised an important influence on the development of the economic life of the state, was introduced in the Ohio part of this index, and has been retained in the following parts, viz., New Jersey and the present volume. In other respects this volume follows the form of its predecessors. While this introduction of the names of persons into the body of the index is admittedly an innovation, it is believed that it will be distinctly helpful to the student.

Difficulties which have delayed the completion of this volume of the index were chiefly due to the great amount of material to be examined, as well as to the extremely crude manner in which the collected documents were for many years made up. Although every reasonable effort has been made to find these documents, some have without doubt escaped the notice of the compiler. In order to make this early record as complete as possible, the Senate and House journals were read for orders to print, and entries have been made for all items which were found to have been ordered printed, although no copy may have been found. The "not found" note attached to these items in the index does not signify that there may not be copies in some of the libraries examined. Although every facility was most generously extended the compiler by the libraries, there is in every library uncatalogued material, in particular pamphlets, and variations in shelf arrangement, etc., which preclude a definite statement in any event. A second difficulty is the existence to an unknown extent of German editions of the House and Senate journals, legislative documents and of many executive reports. In the first 30 days of 1845, for instance, thirteen executive reports were ordered printed in German, 500 copies being printed in each case with one exception, viz., the governor's message of which 1000 copies were ordered printed.

The present volume has been preceded by twelve similar volumes, devoted to the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, New York, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, California, Illinois, Kentucky, Delaware, Ohio and New Jersey, respectively. It will be followed by others, each devoted to a single state. The work when completed will, therefore, furnish an index to the economic material in the reports and governors' messages of all the states of the Union.

In the preparation of this volume the collection of the New York Public Library has been used as a basis, and, unless otherwise shown, the material indexed is in that library. The collections of the Library of Congress, the Pennsylvania State Library, the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the Free Library of Philadelphia, the Library Company of Philadelphia, the Library of the University of Pennsylvania, the Mercantile Library of Philadelphia, the Pennsylvania State Library, the Library of the American Philosophical Society, the German Society of Pennsylvania, the Lancaster County Historical Society, and Columbia University Library have also been examined. Grateful acknowledgment is made for courtesies extended by each of these institutions in the course of the compilation of the present volume.

* The identification of the Senate Journals for 1805/6 and 1806/7 is apt to be confusing if the appendices are taken into consideration. The difficulty results from the failure of binders of late years to note that the Reports of the Treasurer and the Register General for 1805/6 were not published in connection with the Senate Journal; in one instance (Hist. Socy. of Penn.) they have been bound with the Journal for 1805/6, an impossibility of course in the original edition; in another instance (New York Public Library), they are bound with the Senate Journal for 1806/7, which is correct so far as date is concerned. However, copies of the Journal for 1806/7 seen in the library of the Library Company of Phila., in the Hist. Socy. of Penn., and in the Penn. State Library contain an appendix as noted, viz.: 22, 33 pp.

In regard to the German edition the following entries were noted: (1) Letter from H. Grimler, soliciting the Legisl. to have prtd. in German the rept. of the finances. (Sen. jol. 1806/7: 70.) (2) Rept. of the committee to whom was referred the above: repts. referred to have been uniformly printed in German until within two years; res. offered that the prtr. of the German jol. be directed to print and attach to the jols. copies of state treasurer's and register general's repts. for the year 1806-7 [1806-67]. (Sen. jol. 1806/7: 98-99.)

Pennsylvania State College Agricultural Experiment Station

"The experiment station of the Penn. State College, in its present form, was organized under the provisions of the Hatch Act on June 30, 1887. This organization, however, was an expansion and change of form and not a new departure. Since the foundation of the college, experimental work in the interest of agric. had been carried on. . . . In 1868 and 1869, three experimental farms were purchased under the provisions of the legislative act of Feb. 19, 1867. . . ." (A.R. Penn. State College 1894 pt. 1: 14.)

1885. Veto of act for relief of state agric. socy.; with text of bill. (Veto (Pattison) 1885: 155-156.)

- Law recognizing state agric. socy. as in some way connected with public administration of subject, by ann. apprn. should be repealed; the interest should have but one head, state bd. of agric. and apprns. be made to that bd. alone; agric. bd. should have exclusive control of publication of agric. repts.; "agric. socy. is a private corporation conducted with a view to the private profit of its stockholders, most or many of whom are capitalists and farmers of large wealth, who are principally concerned in the refinements of agric., fancy stock-raising, and the development of fleet horses, rather than the practical concerns of every-day farming. Such an institution is well enough in its sphere, and to be commended as a private enterprise; but as the state has a dept. of its own devoted to this subject, whatever public money is spent for this purpose should

Philadelphia Society for Promoting Agriculture

"The Phila. Socy. for promoting agric., with its auxiliary, 'the Farmers' Club,' constitutes the only agric. socy. in the co. It is not, however, properly speaking a co. socy. having been organized in 1785, and being then, and for sometime thereafter, the only agric. socy. in the Union. Its field of usefulness was widely extended, and it included among its members most of the prominent Amer. and many of the European agriculturists of the day. As . . . new socys. sprang up in this and other states, it lost its national character; and when, mainly through the exertions of its members, the Penn. State Socy. was organized, the circle of its immediate influence became further contracted. It still has upon its roll, members in Md., Del. and N. J., and in Bucks, Montgomery, Chester and Delaware cos., in this state. . . ." (2 A.R. trans. state agric. socy. [1854]: 212.)
